SACRAMENTO – Join the annual Gathering of Honored Elders on Saturday, June 7th from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm on the grounds of the California State Indian Museum at 2618 K Street. On this day the State Indian Museum and the California Indian community honor the Elders—the keepers of the traditions—for their role in passing down the history and culture of Native California people.

Lunch will be served to tribal Elders from all over California; food, including Indian tacos, will be available for sale to other attendees. Native American dancers, community services organizations, and arts & crafts vendors will be on hand to enrich the community experience. An official proclamation in celebration of the contributions of California's Indian people, from the Governor's Office, will be shared by Larry Meyers of the Native American Heritage Commission. Native-made arts & crafts will be raffled off throughout the day.

The Gathering of Honored Elders Day is a co-sponsored by California State Parks, its non-profit partner Sacramento Historic Sites Association and many California Indian tribes statewide.
